The enterprise of Mr. Peter Diehl is deserving of particular consideration in this work, both on account of the excellence of its products and its well known reputation since its establishment in Gloversville. This enterprise had its inception here in 1884, Mr. Diehl having formerly been engaged in business in New York city. The premises utilized for the business consist of two floors 30x93 feet in dimensions, which are fully equipped with all necessary machinery and operated by steam power, employment being furnished three skilled mechanics. The products of the house comprise all kinds of machinery known to the trade, and an extensive line of shaftings, pulleys, hangers, etc., are kept constantly on hand and made to order. This house makes a specialty of repairing engines and other machinery and carries a full line of engineers and mill supplies. All kinds of jobbing is promptly and accurately attended to, and all dealings with this house cannot but impress dealers as to its reliability and methods of fair dealing. In all the products of this house the best materials are used; and none but the most perfect workmanship is allowed to pass the critical examination of those in charge. The trade of this house extends throughout the United States, and some articles of manufacture have found sale in the European countries. Mr. Diehl is a thoroughly practical machinist and engineer who takes special care of all work executed by him, thereby greatly enhancing the...
